Meet Our Judges

Sue Bell, Chair of Judges

Winemaker / Director of Bellwether Wines in Coonawarra, Boandik Country. Sue is a deep thinking winemaker, she loves the classics but dabbles on the fringe with emerging Mediterranean varieties.

A regular judge, Sue has chaired shows in WA, Tasmania, Victoria and SA. Deliciousness and true representation of what a region stands for is what Sue encourages judges to find. Inspired by nature and people, making hard work fun is her mantra, making wine along the way in a healthy environment that includes all.

Len Evans Tutorial Dux 2007, Australian Rural leadership program graduate 2008, Australian Society Viticulture & Oenology Winemaker of the Year 2014, Gourmet Traveller Winemaker of the Year finalist 2021.

He is a regular contributor to Wine Companion and Selector magazines and his work has appeared in Wine Enthusiast, Wine & Spirits, Gourmet Traveller WINE, The Adelaide Review and Cuisine magazines. Meet Our Judges

Riley Harrison, Judge

Riley was born and bred in the Adelaide Hills. A University of Adelaide graduate in Oenology and Viticulture, Riley has worked in McLaren Vale, Barossa Valley, Adelaide Hills and Hunter Valley. His international experience includes Germany's Mosel Valley, California and Portugal. Riley has spent the past 10 years crafting wine from a corporate level right down to small scale, garagiste style operations.

In the background he has been steadily building an arsenal of wines under his own label - Harrison Wine. Riley now dedicates all of his time to making the Harrison Wine dream become a reality. He's driven by crafting wines of aromatic intrigue and textural pleasure, but most importantly, the wines must truly reflect the country on which they were grown. Riley has extensive judging experience across both regional and capital city wine shows and is very excited to be back judging in Langhorne Creek.

Sam Rowlands, Associate Judge

Sam Rowlands is a recent addition to the Langhorne Creek wine region. He has worked as Assistant Winemaker at Bleasdale Vineyards since the start of 2023 and has recently stepped up into a Winemaker role.

Sam completed his tertiary qualification in Viticulture and Oenology in 2022 with an Honours in Wine Science. He received an academic achievement award in his final year, along with a scholarship from the university's science department for his Honours project. His professional experience includes four years working for Longview Vineyard, four years working in wine retail at East End Cellars and a stint working as a Vintage Winemaker at Pernod Richard. Sam has also taken a brief hiatus while working for Bleasdale to work a vintage in the Barbaresco region of northern Italy.

Throughout this time, he has developed a good understanding of both Australian and international wines, and has progressed his skills and abilities both in the cellar and the tasting room. Since finishing his studies, and now working full time, he is looking to expand his experience and become more involved in the Langhorne Creek and wider South Australian wine community.

Meet Our Judges

Tyler Follett, Associate Judge

Tyler has been honing his knowledge and skills in the wine industry practically from birth you could say. Growing up in and around the Follett vineyards and winery, it's not hard to see how the industry is in his blood. There's no easy path though and Tyler has proven his mettle doing vintages in the family fold, cellar door sales and a decade in the vineyards before putting a Master of Viticulture and Oenology under his belt from the University of Adelaide.

Tyler spread his wings as assistant winemaker at AVL Buronga Hill and as cellar hand at Matilda Plains Winery while also managing a local vineyard. More recently he has extended his talents with The Prisoner Wine Co. in Napa and locally with Alpha Box and Dice in McLaren Vale. Tyler dabbled in the wine show scene as a steward before joining the Langhorne Creek Wine Show in an Associate Judge role in 2023 and again this year. Tyler is making his mark in the industry.

Jordan McAnaney, Associate Judge

Jordan is a 6th generation McAnaney from West Creek, a large-scale mixed farming enterprise (including vineyards), eight kms east of Langhorne Creek. He has a significant background in viticulture, having worked throughout Langhorne Creek and the Adelaide Hills. Jordan worked for Kimbolton for five years in both the vineyards and cellar door, and also worked the 2023 vintage at Bleasdale. He finished his Bachelor of Viticulture and Oenology at the end of 2023 and is currently employed as assistant winemaker at Metala.

Jordan is extremely passionate about the Langhorne Creek wine region and believes it's a real garden of Eden. The calibre of the local wines gives consumers a direct insight into the terroir but is also a reflection of the quality of local primary production as a whole. He is also very passionate about progression and the next generation within the region. In his spare time you will find him sailing across the lake or volunteering as Captain of the Milang Marine Search and Rescue Squadron.
